Q: Finding all bijections between two finite sets Problem Let A and B be any finite sets with $|A| = |B| = n$. Find all bijections from A to B . I think I understand what it means to biject a set, such as A to B . However, I don't understand what makes something a bijection. I tried to define a bijection as a function that satisfies the following properties: For every $a \in A$, there is exactly one $b \in B$ such that $f(a) = b$. For every $b \in B$, there is exactly one $a \in A$ such that $f(a) = b$. Is that enough to be a bijection? If not, why not? A: You could also try to think about what a bijection is. It's a mapping from one set to another so that every element of the first set is mapped to at least one element of the second set. Your definition is correct, but it doesn't really make it easy to see what a bijection is. A: The answer to the question "Is it enough to be a bijection?" is no. The main example to consider is that of a function $f: \{1, 2, \dots, n\} \rightarrow \{1, 2, \dots, n\}$ which is not necessarily a bijection. For example, consider the function $f: \{1, 2, \dots, n\} \rightarrow \{1, 2, \dots, n\}$ defined by $f(i) = \lfloor 2i/n \rfloor$.
