Virtual Oscilloscope + SignalÂ .Q: Put.asp pages onto Cloud Pages hosted by Google My company is currently paying a monthly fee for hosting.asp pages on our G Suite accounts. I have started an unofficial project to move that processing onto Google Cloud Platform. Is it possible to update.asp files on a Google Cloud Platform hosted server to work with the Cloud Pages functionality? For example, if I make a file in my project and name it /test.asp, it would upload as a.publish file to my GCP environment. Is it possible to upload that same file to the Cloud Pages hosted server from my G Suite account? That would be convenient because I wouldn't have to make a seperate account for just my work files. A: As Mark mentioned, Cloud Pages does not include a web server. It can instead host static files, images, and Javascript and CSS files. There is a usage example that shows how to import a.publish file, which is uploaded to your Google Drive and is then retrieved by a Cloud Function. However, as you've noticed, that would require uploading the file twice. One solution is to take advantage of a free temporary Google Drive storage folder called "Trash". You can upload a.publish file there, and it will only be visible by that file name (after 30 days, the uploader will be refunded. It will then be moved to your permanent Google Drive account). You can then create your.asp pages in a new directory within the "Trash" folder, which will be uploaded and served to your Cloud Pages hosted server. (After you delete it from the temporary "Trash" folder, it will be deleted from your "Trash", and then removed from Google's servers.) A: We actually moved our.asp pages hosted in G Suite to Cloud Pages in the following way. We made use of the Cloud Storage Module for Google Apps Script. 1) In the main Google Sheet, we added a link for each of the.asp pages (e.g., /stockpicker/allstock.asp) that pointed to a GAS file with a code similar to the following:

function getFiles() { var storage = DriveApp.get
