The Elder Scrolls is a series with history dating back to 1994 when Bethesda Softworks released the original Dawn of RPGs. Since then, the series has featured many iconic characters, including the legendary mage Shandrake, the ruthless dragonborn Andronikos and the great king Vatore. The most recent installment in the series, The Elder Scrolls Online, has been receiving a lot of attention with its open-world gameplay and teaming up with co-founder of Doom, John Carmack. Elder Scrolls Online will be available for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, PC, iPad, Android, and Apple TV. "New fantasy action RPG" Elder Scrolls Online is coming to consoles and handheld platforms this fall. Check out the official preview and gameplay below.

the general paragraph by listing nonrecurring expenses with which a party does not or cannot incur liability, and thus, those expenses are not encompassed within section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(1). Here, defendants obtained a new general 11 paragraph judgment in their favor. As to the first element of section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(1), defendants incurred the legal expense of obtaining the new judgment. Furthermore, the new judgment vacated defendants' former judgment, allowing defendants to recover only the $2,507.04 they spent on their underlying case, leaving defendants with no judgment. The second element of section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(1), is satisfied here because the new judgment vacated a prior judgment that allowed plaintiff to recover, in addition to the general paragraph judgment, at least $6,100. Thus, plaintiff was the party who incurred the legal expense. We conclude plaintiff established that defendants incurred the legal expenses and that those expenses were incurred by defendants as a consequence of plaintiff's amended complaint. Therefore, pursuant to section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(1), plaintiff is entitled to its section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(2), fees. Accordingly, we affirm the order awarding plaintiff $6,100 in attorney's fees, pursuant to section 1033.5, subdivision (a)(2).

In one aspect this invention relates to a mailer with sealable flaps. In another aspect this invention relates to a mailer with sealable flaps having adhesive along the flap. In yet another aspect, this invention relates to a mailer that includes a mailer which is openable by pressing a transparent envelope flap through seals located in the envelope. In still another aspect, this invention relates to a mailer with seals that includes transparent or translucent flaps that provide the user with an indication that the seal has been met. In the printing and assembling of a mailer into which it is desired that the flap be accessible, one option involves the insertion of a transparent envelope into a mailer which is then sealed. Once the transparent envelope has been inserted, it is difficult to provide a seal along an edge of a transparent envelope such that there is a seal on either end of the envelope. One of the options for providing the seal is to use a transparent envelope that is transparent on the edge so that no seal is visible. An example of such a mailer is the mailer available from American Standard of West Hartford, Conn. under the trade mark RETRO. In such a mailer, a transparent envelope is placed in a mailer such that the edge of the transparent envelope is outside of the mailer. A sealer is then applied to an edge of the transparent envelope outside of the mailer to provide a seal on the edge of the transparent envelope. In the above mailer, however, there is no indication of whether the mailer has been sealed and the transparent envelopes are not suitable for mailers wherein it is not desirable or possible to open the mailer. It is
