, § 8.3(c) (2d ed. 1962). VII Because of the above failure of proper evidence tending to establish fraud, it is not necessary to decide whether the evidence tends to establish a partnership in which Brecheen was a partner. Assuming, however, that the evidence discloses the existence of a partnership in which Brecheen was a partner, the defendant must prevail if the other partners had notice of the fraud and failed to give a fair opportunity for correction. As noted above, they had such notice. Defendant points out that, on a trial at which he was not a party, the jury found against the defendant on the question whether plaintiffs were entitled to recover from Brecheen for the fraud. It is argued that the jury's finding on that issue should be accepted as proving that the other partners had a fair opportunity to correct the defect. In our opinion this is not the manner in which the finding should be used. If the jury had found in favor of the defendant it would have meant that the plaintiffs had no right to recover from him; it could not have meant anything more or anything less than that. If the verdict had been announced against the defendant it would have meant only that the fraud was not proved. It *107 would be improper to treat the answer in the court below as discharging the other partners, who would then be in the same position as the defendant himself. VIII The judgment of the Court of Appeals is Affirmed. The proposed project will develop a new computational approach to molecular mechanics (MM) based upon adapting novel quantum mechanics (QM)-based computational methods to MM force fields. This new approach is based on d0c515b9f4
